STANLEY WEDDED.

The Ceremony at Westminster Abbey.

Enthusiastic Crowds Cheer the Explorer and His Bride.

A Great Fire Raging at Constantinople -A Thousand Buildings Burned.

Horrible Atrocities Committed In Morocco-France Making Im-portant Changes in Her Tariff.

By Telegraph to The Times. LONDON, July 12 .- | By Cable and Associated Press.] The marriage of Henry M. Stanley and Miss Dorothy Tennant took place at Westminster Abbey this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Dean Bradley, Archbishop Farrar and Lord Bishop Carpenter of Ripon. A large crowd gathered about the abbey, and loudly cheered Stanley and Miss Tennant on their arrival. Stanley entered the abbey at 1:50. He walked erect up the transept, showing no signs of ill-ness, and took a seat near the altar. Count Daroche, representative of King Leopold of Belgium, and the groom's best man, Mr. Myers, brotherin-in-law of Miss Tennant, and Dr. Parke, Mr. Jepson, Capt. Nelson and Lieuts. Stairs and Bonny, who were with Stanley on his last expedition, grouped themselves around Stanley.

Five minutes later Miss Tennant, accompanied by her brother, Charles Coombe Tennant, entered the abbey and walked along the aisle. Her train was borne by two of her nephews dressed as pages of the time of Charles I. The bridesmaids were Miss Sylvia Myers, the bride's niece, and Miss Finlay, both of whom are very pretty. The bride's costume was a petticoat and long court train of white duchesses satin and corded slik, and a bodice of white satin trimmed with lace. The fronts of the skirt and corsage were embroidered with white slik and pearls, and the edge of the petticoat and train were trimmed with garlands of orange blossoms. The bodice was set off with a high Medici collar, embroidered with pearls. A tulle veil was fastened on her hair with diamond stars, and this was surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms. Her shoes were of sliver leather, with diamond buckles. Around her neck was a superb diamond necklace, the gift of Sir William McKinnon, chief of the English East Africa Company, and from which depended a diamond-set miniature of the Queen, presented by Her Majesty as a wedding gift. Miss Tennant also wore a diamond aigrette and diamond brooche, the gifts of Stanley. While moving teward the altar the bride stopped and walked slowly to the tablet under which hes the dust of Livingstone, and placed thereon a wreath of white flowers, in the center of which was the scarlet letter "L." Then, resuming her place, she walked to the altar with head erect and flushed cheeks. Stanley rose to receive her, and the service begun. Stanley's voice was almost inaudible as he reepated the service, but Miss Tennant's was clear and steady, and only faltered as she repeated the words "In slekness, and in health." After the service the party proceeded to the residence of the bride's mother in Richmond Terrace, where a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, Sir Garnet Wolseley and Lady Wolseley, Sir Lyon Playfair, Baroness Burdette-Coutts, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, John Morley, Sir John Millais and a hoet of other well-known persons were present.

After the ceremony in the abbey, the platform erected for the convenience Myers, the bride's niece, and Miss Finlay, both of whom are very pretty.

E After the ceremony in the abbey, the platform erected for the convenience of guests collapsed, and several persons sitting or standing upon it were bruised severely.

FRENCH TARIFF DUTIES.

Raw Silk to Go On the Free List.

PARIS, July 12 .- [By Cable and Associated Press.] The Senate yesterday passed the bill providing for a duty on wines made from raisins. The vote stood 190 to 34.

The most important political action during the week was the decision of the Superior Council of Commerce that in the forthcoming tariff bill raw silk materials shall be placed on the

The Temps, which usually speaks the government's mind on such occasions, says it considers this the most important political action of the year, and declares it assures the continued prosperity of France over her Italian and other rivals.

GOLDEN STATE PRODUCTS.

Outlook for Markets in the Eastern Cities.

New York, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] The Commercial Bulletin says concerning the plan adopted by California raisin packers in the matter of a graduated list of prices for the new crop of raisins that commission firms and jobbers here consider the move unbusinesslike, and that it indicates a lack of confidence. The paper concludes by saying that judging from concludes by saying that judging from the views expressed by the majority of the trade it will be exceedingly difficult to induce buyers to take more than a week's supply at a time where prices are adjusted on a sliding iscale, and some even doubt that any business can be done here at the beginning of the season on such terms.

THE FOURTH ESTATE.

The Late Meeting of Editors at Santa Barbara

IN SEMI-ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Who Were There, What They Dld, and How They Enjoyed Them-selves-All Delighted with the Channel City.

The semi-annual meeting of the Southern California Editorial Association, which was held at Santa Bar-bara last week, and of which brief mention has already been made in these columns, proved one of the most instructive and enjoyable gatherings ever held by members of the newspaper guild in this part of the State.

On Tuesday evening a reception was tendered to the visitors at the operahouse by citizens of Santa Barbara. Mayor P. J. Barber presided, and Hon. C. A. Storke welcomed the city's guests with kindly and pleasant words. Col. J. J. Ayers, president of the association, made a happy reply. An address, "The Press," was then delivered by Miss Linda F. Thompson, and an original poem was read by Mrs. C. F. Hall-Wood. At intervals during the exercises musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Juliette Estelle Mathis and her daughter, Mrs. Frank C. Prescott. Fred C. Bradley and Dr. H. W. Stauffer followed, and an encore was graciously responded to. Later in the evening Mme. Modjeska held a reception at the Arlington, where this distinguished lady made a most felicitous and graceful speech, which was highly appreciated and generously applauded. On Wednesday many of the visitors took carriage drives about Santa Barbara. and others, numbering about eighty, went on an excursion on the steamship Eureka to Santa Cruz Island—an expedition which, however, was not altogether enjoyed.

Early in the evening, W. H. Mills of the Southern Pacific got the northern editors, of whom quite a number were visiting Santa Barbara, into the reading-room of the Arlington, where were also some of the southern editors, and the up-country brethren adopted handsome resolutions thanking the citizens of beautiful Santa Barbara, into the reading-room of the Arlington, where were also some of the southern editors, and the manager of the Arlington, Mr. Wheeler, for the hospitality shown the northern members of the guild. Speeches were then called for by the chairman, Mr. Mills, when responses were made by Mr. Hervey Lindley (who was on hand inspecting the condition of his fences,) by Col. H. G. Otis of The Times, Dr. Booth of Red Bluff, and several others. The State division question was touched upon by all the speakers, the sentiment being practic

The southern editors then held their regular evening session in the parlor, according to programme. L. T. Fisher of the Santa Monica Outlook read an entertaining paper on "The Newspaper Man." Mrs. Frank J. Dyer of East Los Angeles sang a solo beautifully, and received an encore. Mrs. Emma S. Marshall of Burbank read a paper on "The Newspaper Womas."

read a paper on "The Newspaper Woman."

On the following day the guests, under the captaincy of W. H. Mills, paid a visit to the Hope ranch, also to Ellwood, returning to Santa Barbara in the afternoon, when a business meeting was held.

Action was taken by the association in reference to H. H. Boyce, who, it will be recollected, recently proucred himself, by some hocus pocus never understood, to be made a member of the California Committee, at San Francisco, on the World's Fair, to represent the press of Southern California. This was done without the advice, consent or knowlede of the editorial fraternity of the south, and was unanimously denounced by the press of Los Angeles. The Editorial Association took decided action in the premises, rejecting the pretensions of Boyce, disapproving his appointment and letting it be known in decided terms that the members repudiate that person of unsavory reputation as a representative of the profession.

At the evening session J. P. Booth

At the evening session J. P. Booth of The Needles read a paper on "The Joys of the County Journalist." Sam Davis of the Curson Appeal delivered an address, and H. J. Vall of Pasadens read a paper on "Honesty and Dishonesty in Journalism."

A ball at the Arlington followed, and on the next morning the visitors started homeward, well pleased with their brief stay in Santa Barbara.

Among those who attended the convention were:

Mr. Entron: Although my taxes are small, yet they are as burdensome to me as if I paid much more. And as a tax-payer, I feel that I have a right to criticise those extravaganess that are factors in the creation of high taxes. I have in my mind the county hospital. No sooner does the impecanious citizen become broken down and debilitated, than he rushes off to the hospital. Even persistent dyspepsis and constipation are getting to be excuses for admission. Hence, allow me space to enter my feeble protest against further continuance of this pernicious practice. It costs the county many hard dollars for the treatment of every one of these unfortunates, and it is high time that they should know that they can save the county that expense, and themselves those distressing allments, by the judicious use of a few bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparills,—a remedy that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, —a remedy that within my observation is a sovereign cure for those too common disorders. If they won't take it they ought to be compelled to by some law that would meet the case. Under the circum-stances a full hospital is inexcusable, —hence

Mass Meeting Last Night at the Courthouse.

SPEECHES BY NATIONALISTS

Who Declare That They Will Igno Any Candidate Who Will Not Favor the City Owning Its Own Water Works.

A mass meeting was held in front of the old courthouse last night for the purpose of discussing the water question. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Nationalists. John R. Hunter was the first speaker. Heccalled the meeting to order, and stated on starting out that whenever the cities of the East have owned their own water works, the people have been served much more satisfactorily. He told how the Citizens' Water Company is hurting property on the hills by its failure to provide sufficient water.

cient water.

M. J. Judah was the next speaker.
He stated that all he wants is to see not only the water works, but also the gas plants, etc., under the management of the city, so that the people can be served at reasonable rates. He represented the question from the standpoint of a Nationalist, and made a lengthy talk on that line. He dived into politics and stated that his party will ignore any candidate who refuses to adopt their views on the water question.

THE result of the primary election in San Diego yesterday was favorable to Bowers for Congress, though we have no full returns as yet. This renomination of Mr. Bowers; it does not even insure his indorsement by his own county convention, because that body will be bound by the dictates of ordinary prudence to listen to the voice of the district, which is far from partial to the ambition of Mr. Bowers. Moreover, the district, with its fifteen counties, has several strong aspirants for the Congressional honor, from among whom to pick a suitable candidate. Summer is not constituted of one swallow, and the Congressional nut is not yet cracked.

END.

The House has approved the conerence report on the Silver Bill. All that is now needed is the President's signature, which will probably be given. The effect of this legislation upon the price of silver is already marked. When Congress met, silver was 93 cents an ounce. Yesterday it was quoted in New York at 107. sanction it will not take long for the price to reach, 129. This is nearly forty per cent. more than the price a few months ago. The effect on this coast will be specially marked. Mines which have been closed down because they did not pay will start up again and new ones will be opened. Fresh life will be infused into the Rocky Mountain region. In cases where a mine has been turning out $10,000 month, at a cost of $10,000, leaving no margin for the owners, there will soon be a profit of $50,000 a year-quite a difference.

It is not, however, by any means the silver miners alone that will be benefited. Mines are great consumers. The country in which they are located produces nothing, as a rule, besides mineral. They need large quantities of machinery, timber, quicksilver, salt and other commodities, besides the necessaries of life for the miners, all of which have to be brought from the outside. This increased activity in mining will quicken the pulse of trade throughout the country. Again, this measure means more money for the people and better prices for the products raised by farmers, who now have such hard work to pay their way. It means better times than we have enjoyed for some time past. The country has been suffering for a lack of circulating medium, which deficiency will now be supplied. Gold will be worth a little less, but that will work no hardship, as those who hold gold have more than their share of the world's goods and have made much of their wealth by an unexpected and unwarranted rise in the value of gold.

The advocates of silver coinage have displayed great ability and persistence in the fight which they have made. They and the people are to be con-gratulated on the success which has crowned their efforts.

CHINESE FOR MEXICO.

That is a big project for the settletlement of Chinese in Mexico. A land scheme of gigantic proportions is said to have formed, in which over fifteen million acres of land on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec will be utilized in the raising of coffee, indigo, tobacco and possibly tea, the whole to be managed by Chinese imported into Mexico for the purpose. A San Francisco lawyer and a wealthy Chinaman of that city are credited with being at the head of the scheme. Collector Pheips of San Francisco recommends the transporta-tion of the Chinese to Tehuantepec by way of that city, although at prethe ruling of the Treasury Department

He writes:

favor, but by merit. He writes:

The closer the binds of union between mother and child—England and the United States—the better it will be for both, and our race, and indeed for civilization. Those who rant about cause for quarrel between us are no friends to either nation or to humanity. There must never be war between us, no matter how much either may be egged on by those who hate the English race, and would, therefore, like to see us at one another's throats. We feel quite as proud of the United States as any of its people cau be. Its honor and reputation are as dear to us as they can be to those on the other side of the Atlantic, and I rejoice above all things to think that this mutual respect we have always had for one another is now maturing into sincere and mutual affection.

THE SILVER BILL-NEARING THE military academies in each of the States. The plan is for the graduating classes to go each year to the academy for a higher examination and a superior military education. In conn with this idea, some have gone even further, and propose a military training for all the boys in the country, with the view of providing a suitable and healthy means of recreation for the boys, of the laboring class in particular, after their day's work is over. In Portland, Me., for several years there has been a company made up of boys of the poorest class, which has been a great success. The boys not only Irill well, but learn self-respect, subordination brandished a wrench which he had clutched from the engineer's tool box. Both his arms were in the grasp of the almost despairing man beneath him, but men on the depot platform at Clyman, one of the towns through which the train passed could see that he had nearly freed himself, and in another moment, unless help came, the murderous blow of the wrench would fall.

The maniac was Engineer Hotelling's fireman, C. L. Hastings. Near Watertown he stepped from the cab to the tender to coal up. He did not return and Engineer Hotelling reached back from his seat and pulled aside the cab curtain moved aside Hastings bounded in from the tender. He clutched the engineer about the neck and threw him headlong to the swaying foot-board. There the two struggled as the train dashed on under a full head of steam.

A Convict's Serious Charge Against a San Francisco Lawyer.

Striking Molders Assault Another Non-union Man and Beat Him Terribly-Other Happenings on the Coast

By Telegraph to The Times SAN DIEGO, July 12 .- [Special.] In the Republican primaries today Bowers carried a majority of the precincts in this city over Murray. Coronado was unanimous for Murray. The persistent charge that Murray was a Los Augeles and Coronado Beach candidate was used against him. The opposition resorted to every means to successfully defeat him. The county convention can alone settle the candidacy of either. SAN DIEGO, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] The result of the primaries for delegates to the county convention, so far as canvassed, shows that Bowers has carried a majority of the precincts in the city, while Gen. Murray has four of the six outside pre-cincts heard from. Coronado was unanimous for Murray. SAN MATEO REPUBLICANS. SAN MATEO, July 12.—The Republican County Central Committee of San Mateo county met here today and elected delegates to the State convention, as follows: C. N. Felton, A. F. Green, B. M. Templeton, John T. Ralston, James D. Byrnes, I. R. Goodspeed and Alvinza Hayward.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A Convict Says He Perjured Himself by His Lawyer's Advice.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] In the Superior Court this morning Benjamin Davis, convicted of manslaughter for killing his wife on July 6, 1889, said he desired to inform the Court that he had sworn falsely in two instances during the trial, but had done so at the instigation of Attorney Wilson, who was his counsel at the beginning. He said he had made a false statement at first in reference to not having entered his wife's room after she was shot, and that he told Wilson the truth, but the latter advised him to stick to his first statement, as there were witnesses to corroborate such statement. The second instance in which he perjured himself was in testifying that he did not go down a certain alleyway. He swore falsely to that because the not go down a certain alleyway. He swore falsely to that because the attorney told him it would be better to corroborate the testimony of the witness Alden.

The Judge postponed sentence until Wednesday.

A BAD SEND-OFF.

The Ranger's Mishap on Starting for Quaternala.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] The United States teamer Ranger came down from Mare Island today and anchored in the stream. She had been ordered to Guatemala on account of the unsettled state of affairs to look after the interests of Americans.

While getting under way to proceed to sea this afternoon, the Ranger took a sheer with the tide and ran into the Lombard-street wharf, breaking some cross-beams and the corner of the wharf shed. The Ranger had her cut-water carried away about ten feet be-low the knight-head, and also had her low the knight-head, and also had her martingale stays carried away. She then steamed away from the wharf at full speed, and in doing so smashed the bow of the port steam launch and the port midship boat, which were hunging from the davits. Notwithstanding the mishap, the Ranger proceeded to sea on her way to Guatemala.

OUTRAGE BY STRIKERS

A Non-u non Molder Attacked and Badly Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] This evening F. J. Urell, a non-union molder, left the Fulton Iron Works on his way to Oakland, where he lives. He boarded a Howard-street cable car, when he was attacked by nine men, who beat and kicked him severely. After a few minutes, when the car had nearly reached the ferry, the men jumped off and ran away. Urell says he recognized all the men as striking molders. He gives the names of two as Scott and Thomas McCanley. The others' names he does not know. His wounds are severe, but not dangerous.

The Canadian Pacific in turn is expected to extend its incoming and outpoling lines, so as to include San Francisco. It follows that freight will be materially reduced, and that in consequence business between China and lapan and the United States will reveive an impetus.

An Insane Female Firebug. SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Catherine May, a widow, was arrested today, charged with attempted arson, fire becharged with attempted arson, fire being discovered on the stairway of her home. When Officer Daley went to arrest her, she locked the door of her room and threatened to shoot him if he forced it open. He forced the lock, however, and found her with a revolver in her hands. It is belieged she is demented. After being locked up in a cell she commenced crying and then tore a piece from her skirt and tried to hang herself, but was prevented.

The Senate Passes Two Sub-

Designed to Build Up the America Merchant Marine.

The Tariff Bill Taken Up and in Order Till Disposed Of.

The House Passes the Conference Silver Bill and It Is Now Ready for the President's Signature

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON (D. C.,) July 12 .- [By the Associated Press.] Senate.-A remonstrance of the Board of Trade of Jackson, Tenn., against the Federal Election Bill was presented by Mr. Harris.

The Senate resumed consideration of the two shipping bills, and was addressed by Mr. Vest.

Mr. Vest said he would like the Senator from Maine (Mr. Frye) to ex-plain how it was that there was a time when the United States, without a dollar of subsidy, and when the country was undeveloped, and just emerged from a colonial condition, had grap-pled with Great Britain and came near wrestling from her the control of the ocean-carrying trade. He quoted from a speech of Daniel Webster to from a speech of Daniel Webster to the effect that the success of the American merchant marine had come, not from protection or bounty, but from skill, perseverance and economy. He showed how former subsidies had ended in failure and scandal, and summed up the whole question by reading an extract from a speech of Representative Cannon, showing the expenditure of over twenty-one millions in subsidies, between 1848 and 1878, and asserting that seven millions would buy all the American steamships then affoat. The idea that commerce followed the flag, Mr. Vest said, was a monster failacy. He alluded to the interpellation in the British Parliament yesterday as to the McKinley bill, and said as soon as England found she could dispense with American produce she would do so, and yet, he said, all that American statesmanship aimed at was to put up duties against Great Britain. He predicted that subsidies would never bring a dollar of foreign commerce to the country. They would enrich men who got contracts, and there would be a repetition of the same old scandals that had attended the expenditure of $21,000,000 in subsidies, an expenditure which had left the country today with its shipping absolutely dead.

Mr. Stewart gave it as his opinion that the plan proposed in the pending bills was the only mode of reviving the ocean-carrying trade of the United States, and that free ships would simply destroy American ship-building yards, without affording any relief.

Mr. George opposed the bills.

Mr. Harris offered an amendment providing that the total sum paid to any vessels sailing between any American port and foreign ports shall in no case exceed the sum paid vessels of the same class and tonnage between such foreign ports and the nearest American port thereto. Rejected—yeas, 21; nays, 27, a party vote.

Mr. Teller offered an amendment providing that no vessel be entitled to the effect that the success of the Amer-foreign ports and the nearest American port thereto. Bejected—yeas, 21; nays, 27, a party vote.

Mr. Teller offered an amendment providing that no vessel be entitled to payment under the act that makes any discrimination between or gives unequal facilities to competitive transportation lines in receiving or forwarding freight or baggage at any American port or at any foreign port. Agreed to.

A vote was then taken on the amendment offered yesterday by Mr. Vest, providing for free ships for foreign trade, but not for lake or coastwise trade. It was rejected—yeas, 18; nays, 29; a strict party vote.

The tonnage subsidy bill was then passed—yeas, 29; nays, 18. The only exception to a strict party vote were that Mr. Payne voted with the Republicans for the bill and Messrs. Edmunds and Plumb with the Democrats against it.

On motion of Mr. Morrill the Tariff Bill was taken up and made unfinished Adjourned. House.—Mr Adjourned.

House.—Mr. Dingley of Maine presented a memorial of the State conference of Congregational churches of Maine for the passage of the 'original package bill.' Referred.

Mr. Conger of Iowa called up the conference report on the Silver Bill. Mr. Conger said the bill presented in the report was, as all conference bills must be, in the nature of a compromise. It was not just such a bill, perhaps, as any member of the House would like to pass if he were preparing a measure to pass if he were preparing a measure to state his convictions, but it was a bill that would answer the demands of the that would answer the demands of the country; that would answer the demands of the silver miner; that would answer the demands of agriculturists, laborers and business men of the country. The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bland) would tell the House the bill demonetized silver. It did nothing of the kind. On the contrary the whole tenor of the measure remonetized silver. Additional circulation had been demanded. The bill would give the country at the presented. bill would give the country at the present price of silver an increase of $57,780,000 a year. If silver went up to parity with gold it would give an increase of $70,000,000. The last section of the bill unlocked $707,000,000 now

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Mr. Williams of Illinois inquired whether the gentleman, in his calculation, did not assume that silver would reach a parity with gold.

Mr. Conger replied that whether it did or not, the increase would be nearly that amount; at any rate, it would fall short of that only about $13,000,000. Was the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bland) willing to stand here and vote against a measure which would give the suffering people of the west the additional circulation of this large amount? The work of the House has been moving the country rapidly toward the establishment of a parity between silver and gold. When Congress met silver was 93 cents an ounce. Yesterday it sold for 107½. Since it had been announced that the conference had agreed upon the bill silver has gone up more than three cents an ounce. [Republican applause.]

Mr. Cutcheon of Michigan regarded the conference bill as a vast improvement over the monstrosity sent here by the Senate, which proposed to make United States mints a dumping-ground for all the silver of the world for the benefit of speculation.

Mr. Hermann of Oregon said he favored the bill. Although it did not contain the fullest recognition of the equality of gold and silver as money metals, it was a concession on both sides of the question. It was a victory for the popular demand. It was a long step toward free coinage. He had no doubt that after the fail election there would be a strong representation here on the line of free coinage of silver.

Mr. Bland of Missouri concurred with the gentleman in hoping that the next House would be a free coinage and stood by their colors. He said the pending bill was the result of secret meetings of the Republican conferees. He, as a conferee, had known nothing of the measure until it had been framed and the report was ready to be signed. The Democratic members had been ignored in the preparation of the bill. The bill was one which practically demonetized silver. It was a sugar-coated quinine pill. On first reading it seemed that the Secretary was to purchas Bland.) had fallen into a trap. Every silver representative then felt perfectly confident that the next President would sign a free coinage bill. He would refer to history those members now willing to accept this report as leading to free coinage. Now was the time to make the fight. If the conference report was rejected another conference would be held and the objectionable features of the report stricken out.

Mr. Morrow of California expressed approval of the conference report, and proceeded to argue that the depression in the price of silver in recent years resulted from artificial manipulation. In the course of the debate, Mr. Townsend of Colorado said he and some other Republicans had voted for free coinage, and if the gentlemen on free coinage, and if the gentlemen on the other side had stood solid a free coinage bill would have passed the House. Then they had recognized that the only way to get silver legisla-

JUDGES OFF FOR VACATION.

The Freeman Extortion Case-Another Complaint Against Bedwell for Embezzlement-Wife-beater White.

The Superior Courts have all taken a recess, with the exception of Depart ment No. 5, where Judge McKinley will sit hereafter during the vacation and hear all probate, civil, criminal and ex parte matters. The other judges are taking a rest after the arduous duties of the session, and nearly all of them will go out of town in various directions to recuperate.

Judge McKinley sat yesterday in his courtroom in Department No. 5. He will hear matters from other de-

He was engaged all day in hearing arguments in the case of the Los Angeles Savings Bank vs. Batts et al., upon a motion to vacate a writ of as-sistance. After the arguments the case was submitted and was taken under advisement.

Judge McKinley granted a divorce yesterday to Mrs. H. A. Marion from her husband, G. L. Marion. The ground of the complaint was failure to provide, and the case went by default. IN JUSTICE SAVAGE'S COURT yesterday W. W. Freeman was arraigned on the charge of extortion under color of official right, under which he was arrested the day before, and his trial was set for the 21st of July. His ball was fixed at $250, which and his trial was seed at $250, which yas furnished.

The circumstances of the case are such that, if shown by the evidence, the defendant will have hard work to the defendant will have hard work to secape a conviction.

He was formerly a deputy constable under Constable Clements, but his commission was afterward revoked. Later he was a deputy at Vernon, and commission was afterward revoked.

Later he was a deputy at Vernon, and that commission was also revoked.

The case upon which he was arrested, it is alleged, is not very creditable to Freeman. As far as can be ascertained, he obtained possession of some papers from Justice Savage's court, and proceeded to Santa Monica July 9th. He went to the small candy stand run on the beach by A. H. Dunn and pretended—that he was a deputy constable, duly authorized to serve writs of attachment. He said, it is alleged, that he had a writ of attachment against him for $19.50, in an action pending in the court, in which Lee & Miller were the plaintiffs, and Dunn the defendant. It is charged that he exhibited the papers to Dunn, and told him that if he did not pay the amount immediately he—would close him up.

Dunn was frightened about the matter, as he did not wish his place closed up, and at once paid the money, which Freeman pocketed. It is also charged that Freeman collected costs in the case amounting to $10.

The complaint made against Freeman is that he did all this after his commission was revoked and without apy authority to do so.

CLAYTON WHITE'S LATEST MOVE. Late yesterday afternoon a petition for release under writ of habeas corpus was taken out by Clayton White, held to answer by Justice Austin last week for a brutal assault made upon his wife, in which he broke her collar bone and otherwise injured her. He was held under a $5000 bond, which he held under a $5000 bond, which he could not give, and consequently has been quietly shelved in the County Jail until his trial. Being a lawyer, he has conceived the idea of securing his release by technicalities, and his application will be heard Monday atternoon at 4 o'clock by Judge McKinley. In his affidavit, which is a long one, he claims that a number of errors were made at his preliminary examination.

Among them he asserts that the complaint or information against him was not signed by his wife, but that she made her mark when able to write.

The Charms and Prices of Island Life Depicted. AVALON, July 11.—[Correspondence of The Times.] Each steamer brings a goodly number of visitors for the season, beside those who come for a day's fishing and rowing, returning with the steamer the next day.

The cottages and tents seem to be about all taken, and what is to be done with the crowds that come to escape August's heat remains a mystery.

August's heat remains a mystery.

Among those located here for the season are families from all the southern towns, and all agree that it is the most charming and safe resort on the coast. Here one sees small children rowing, fishing and bathing at all hours of the day, without any assistance from the older people, and the first accident has yet to be recorded. Gay parties, singing and bathing at all hours of the day, without any assistance from the older people, and the first accident has yet to be recorded. Gay parties, singing and rowing, fill the beautiful bay till late at night, the placid waters and balmy air making it a never-ending delight—a dream, a dolce far niente of the soul. Aside from the charm of the bay, with its fishing, rowing and curio bunting, here are lofty and precipitous peaks to be scaled, hunting for the festive goat, or exploring deep cafions and mountain sides for the hidden silver mine. A party of young people went out a few days ago on such an expedition, at least tha gentlemen did, and the young ladies went for fun and a day's climbing, both of which they found, having walked sixteen miles, some of the way over steep and rocky cliffs, up loose shale mountains, where a step forward seemed to make two backward, and attended with great danger. The trip is much more difficult than that to Wilson's Peak, still they reached camp before dark, bringing as trophies ten goats. It is needless to say the ladies had no hand in that. Some silver specimens and a few shells from the west coast were secured. This west shore is very rocky and precipitous and difficult of access, the waves dashing with tremendous force twenty feet high against huge cliffs.

Many people complain of the accommodations to be had here, and justly, but this is partly their own fault, for, instead of writing or trusting to some friend to secure them some place, they should come and personally conduct their own researches before the family comes, then you know just what you have and what you have not. A furnished tent or cottage means quite a different matter here from one on the mainland, and you are sure to be charged exorbitant prices, without comforts or necessaries thrown in. For example, one lady rented a furnished cottage; the furniture consisted one bed and mattrass, one cot and no mattrass, no pillows, blankets or quilts; two common chairs, dishes and cooking utensils in the same profusion; no ta many passengers who do not take advantage of the steamer arrive in private boats.

The excitement on Monday was the appearance of two supposed sharks in the bay at an hour when there were many persons in bathing. A party of gentlemen quickly manned a row boat and made an attempt to capture the monsters. After firing several short, left the bay, probably disgusted at the needless alarm displayed by some of the nervous persons, who believe that a ripple of the water indicate the presence of a dangerous foe.

On Wednesday, July 8th, Mmes. Charles Smith, L. Loed and H. M. Sale tendered a reception to their friends to celebrate the anniversary of the first arrival of their party at Catalina. MURBAY AND BOWERS.

Press Talk on the Contest in San Diego.

OF THE OPINIONS

The Situation Powerfully Summ Up-"The Decisive County" Can-not Be Counted Out - Why Murray Should Be Chosen.

[San Diego Union, July 12.] TWO BIG COUNTIES NOT TO BE FOOLED

WITH., Some San Diego county Republicant seem to be possessed of the idea that their brother Republicans in other counties have surrendered the whole shebang to them and intend to let them run the campaign just as they please and gram down their throats just whomsoever they please for Congress. Somebody is in a fair way to be tendered a surprise party. Two great, big, powerful counties like Los Angeles and San Bernardine with a combined delegation of seventy-nine are not going to be fooled with; they are not going to sit in the back room and hold a mum social while San Diego Republicans have all the fun. Now, then, don't you fool yourself with any such notions. seem to be possessed of the idea that

Los Angeles county has sixty-three delegates, San Bernardino county has sixteet. San Diego county has twenty-four. Unless the Republicans of this county receive the cooperation of the delegates of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties their hopes will be in vain. The delegates from those two counties number seventy-nine. It is absolutely necessary to secure the support of those two counties if San Diego is to have the Congressman. There is absolutely not one scintilla of proof that Senator Bowers will receive the support of those delegates. There is irrefutable proof that those delegates will support Gen. Eli H. Murray.

"OF NATIONAL REPUTATION."

"OF NATIONAL REPUTATION."

[Cotton Chronicle.]
From the first we were favorably inclined toward Gen. Murray. His record as a soldier, as Governor of Utah, and as a private citizen is one that even a candidate for the Chief Magistracy might envy. That he is an able and competent man, no one will attempt to deny. And when we consider the needs of Southern California, he has one qualification that places him head and shoulders above any other candidate yet mentioned, i. e., he is a man of national reputation, and will command attention from every one the first time his voice is heard in the halls of Congress. He is a man in whom the President, the Senators and the people have confidence.

A WARNING TO MARKHAM MEN.

Press, of San Diego says: "How would Morrow do as the Rebublican nomines for Governor? He to be on their guard against a cambination between Bowers and Morrow delegates. The language of the Daily Press looks like treachery.

"THE RIVERSIDE FERMENT."

[San Diego Sun.] A WARNING TO MARKHAM MEN.

Isan Diego Sun.]

It is noticeable that Senator Rower's, San Bernardino support comes cartisly from Riverside, the home of a candidate for the State Senate. With Bowers in the Congressional race the road would be clear for the Riverside man. This accounts for the Bowers ferment up that way.

Wilde of Ventura, or a Los Angeles man. "THE BIGGEST MISTAKE."

ICorrespondence San Diego Union].

If San Diegans do not elect Murray delegates all through the fi, bt they will make the biggest mistake they ever made politically, and this assertion is made by one whose acquaintance with the two men who are unmed as candidates is about even. Personas candidates is about even. Personally a friend of both; politically the indorser of the man of the greatest mental caliber, Murray, and thereby the friend of San Diego. WHERE "THE DECISIVE COUNTY COMES 1N.

|San Diego Sun, July 12 |
There are fifteen counties in this Congress District, casting 193 [188] convention votes. Ten of these would naturally stand together for the Fresno candidate, leaving five—the counties of Los Angeles, San Diego, San Bernardino, Orange and Ventura—to control the situation with 118 votes, of which Los Angeles will cast 63. Los Angeles, therefore, is the preponderating influence, and is to be considered first. If she should put her vote north of the Tehachepi mountains the nomination would go there. If she should combine Tehachepi mountains the nomination would go there. If she should combine with San Diego and San Bernardino the nomination would be made here. The four counties of San Diego, San Bernardino, Orange and Ventura can win with her, but not without her, a combination against her with the ten northernmost counties being impracticable and of no advantage here if possible to bring about. Los Angeles must be considered and figured on, and the question of what that county wants and what it may do is the principal one for any other county that has a candidate for Congress to consider.

Now, as to Senator Bowers, the Republican leaders of Los Angeles are a unit against him and so is the Republican press. They say that they will not support him under any eigenst the unit against him and so is the Republican press. They say that they will not support him under any circumstances. This being true, what could Bowers do if he should get the united support of his own county and that of San Bernardino, Orange and Ventura? He would have only fifty-two votes without the slightest chance of adding to the number, inasmuch as the northern counties in the district, seeing a way to enlist Los Angeles on their side, would cling to their own candidate. Dr. Rowell. The only result of the Bowers candidacy, therefore, would be defeat for himself and his county.

As to Gen. Murray, Los Angeles is ready to take him up as soon as San Diego shall have done so. The decisive county wants him, asks for him, and promises him a united delegation. San Bernardino county, as represented by its best and most influential papers, takes the same stand. The three counties united would cast 103 votes, or sufficient to nominate, and thus make the victory of a San Diego man complete. Under these circumstances would it be politic or sensible in a newspaper with the interests of this county at heart to support any other man than Murray? It might be very fine and theatrical to throw down the gauntlet to Los Angeles, but that would end San Diego's chance of getting a Congressman forthwith.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

[San Diego Union, July 12.]

Maj. George H. Bonebrake, president of the Los Angeles National Bank, and heretofore supposed to be a candidate for the Congressional nomination, arrived in the city last evening. To a Union reporter who alked with him last evening on the all-absorbing subject of the political situation, and particularly the Congressional situation, the Major was very explicit on some points which are very pertinent just at present.

"Well, Major, some people down here are under the impression that you are in the race for Congress. How about that?"

"It is just this way. I have tried to [San Diego Union, July 12.]

are in the race for Congress. How about that?"

"It is just this way. I have tried to make it understood that I am not a candidate. I am for Col. H. H. Markham for Governor, and Los Angeles can hardly presume to expect both a Governor and a Congressman. Now you may state emphatically that I am not a candidate, and will under no circumstances be a candidate, not even in the event of the nomination for Governor going to the northern part of the State. It was understood, of course, that San Diego would name a Congressman this year, but it was also understood that she would present only one name. It was never expected that she would, under any circumstance, present two names."

"Well, then, suppose she should present two names?"

"In that event it is entirely reasonable

"Well, then, suppose she should present two names?"
"In that event it is entirely reasonable to suppose that Los Angeles will bring out somebody herself.
"Another thing, there seems to have been an impression credited in the minds of some down here that Gen. Murray was running in the interest of some Los Angeles man. Now, that was wholly unknown to me, and so far as my interest is concerned, is wholly false. We understand that he is running solely in his own interest. I want it most distinctly understood that I am not a candidate."

RETURNED TO HER PARENTS, A Young Cirl Who Ran Away from

A young girl aged 14 years, named Barnes, who ran away from home several months ago, was last night found by the police and returned to her parents.

There appears to be something of a story in the case, for at 11:80 o'clock Mr. Patterson, the stepfather of the girl, called at the police station and wanted a warrant for the arrest of one George Beckers on the ground that he seduced the girl. He stated that Beckers induced the girl to go Beckers induced the girl to go to Arizona about four months ago. He paid her fare, but they did not go on the same train, and Mr. Patterson claims that he could not catch them at that time. The two have been in Arizona ever since and only returned to Los Angeles a few days ago. They came back to get the girl's mother's consent to their marriage, but Patterson claims she will not give it for the reason that he believes Beckers has a wife and family in Arizons. Justice Lockwood would not issue a warrant for Beckers charging him with seduction or rape, as there is no evidence going to show that he reduced the girl to this state. The orime was committed in Arizona. He thought he could issue a warrant for Beckers's arrest on the grounds that he ran off with a ward, as Mrs. Patterson was appointed guardian of the girl by Judge Clark before Beckers ran off with her, but he was afraid it would not stick and the matter was dropped for the time being. afraid it would not stick and the matarrain it would not stock and the mat-ter was dropped for the time being. Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract fresh cold. Indeed he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he taxes another, and he is always exceedingly carcful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh less than any shoe store in the city offers them at.

that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.
At times many of the symptoms of catarrh seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appear and he learns to his herror, that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing; hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue; the breath lessens on a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms cocur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful. yard; both sides alike; the sales a yard; a worth 20c. CONSUMPTION.

The earlier symptoms of consumption consist in a wearliers at times or a disposition to remain passive, a peculiar sensitiveness to meeting or according a bill or stairs, a slight hacking cough with or without expectors tion, flying pains throughout the chest et back, or under the shoulder blades. These symptoms are more noticeable toward or in the night, slight fever in the afternoon. Cold feet and hands and in many cases a blue lividity of the lips and roots of the fluger nails. It is unnecessary to give the symptoms in the more advanced stages of consumption, as there is scarcely a family in our State wherein its ravages have not been felt in a greater or less degree.

As Dean of Westminster, Dr. Bradley will preside as is due over the ceremony in the abbey, assisted by Dr. Vaughan, Dean of Llandaff and Master of the Temple, and Dr. Hughes, the Bishop of St. Asaph. Dr. Bradley is a brother-in-law of E. T. Cook, the present editor of the Pall Mail Gazette. He is in much favor with all sections of the community, having faithfully followed in the broad path of his predecessor, Dean Stanley. Dr. Vaughan is one of the most eloquent of preachers, his discourses drawing crowded congregations to the Temple Churchthe conventicle of the barristers in the Inner and Middle Temple Inns of Court—during the law terms. The Bishop of St. Asaph consented to take part in the ceremony at the special request of Mr. Stanley, part of whose

That he one day failed to perform quite a marvelous experiment was due, he said, to the workman who did not provide the correct apparatus for chaining the electric current to do his bidding.

Little 2-year-old Madeline, a bright, winsome child, is naturally the pet of the household. One very pretty picture of her, which Mrs. Edison keeps in her boudoir, was taken in a quaint fashion. A crescent-shaped moon is outlined upon the card, and with trees for a background, the child was photographed. Underneath are the lines:

with charming manners as become a countess. Her beauty and fine manners won high praise last summer, while in London and Paris, which she visited with her husband. Mrs. Edison is 24 years old, a trifle above the average height, with a very graceful figure. She has brown hair which she usually wears high at the back, with a fluffy bang over her forehead. Her eyes are hazel, and her complexion that clear olive which artists love. Mr. Edison's pet name for her is "Mena." There is one other important item in connection with the wedding, of which very little is at present known—the honeymoon. It is understood, however, that the halcyon days will not be spent at one spot. I have reason to think that the distinguished pair will pay a series of visits to various friends before Mr. Stanley begins the course of lectures he has undertaken to deliver in the autumn. Edison always dresses in perfect taste, and on ordinary occasions very quietly. Many Frenchy teagowns and handsome dinner dresses were added to her wardrobe last summer, when she was in Paris.

She takes a long drive every morning, accompanied by her little daugnter and its nurse. Her carriage costume at this season is very apt to be an army-blue cashmere with passementerie trimmings, and a straw hat with a becoming cluster of pink roses for ornament.

Mrs. Edison has a young woman's fondness for society, and entertains a good deal; luncheon and dimer parties being her favorite ways of dispensing being her favorite ways of dispensing hospitality to her friends. Her sister, Mrs. Mary Miller, whose home is Akron, O., spends much time with Mrs. Edison, and is expected in a few weeks to finish a visit which she commenced in April.

The luncheon hour at the Edison mansion is 2 o'clock, and lest her absent-minded husband forget that he needs some refreshment, Mrs. Edison often has the carriage sent for him to his laboratory, although it is only a

There are some fine paintings in this room; a head by Elizabeth Gardner, who imitates so closely her master, Bouguereau; a figure painted by Perrault and one by Le Roux, a moonlight effect painted by Dougette.

You enter the dining-room at the rear of the hall. This is rather a simply-furnished room. The sideboard stands in a recess and displays a few pieces of silver and crystal. Mrs. Edison, by the way, has a small fortune in silver, which is kept in a safe, only a few pieces being in constant use. which Mr. Edison likes to indulge in occasionally.

An attractive picture in the diningroom is one of Mrs. Edison's old home in Akron, O., which looks like a pleasant place, with its broad and well-kept lawn and spacious dwelling.

There are many beautifully appointed rooms on the second floor of the Edison mansion. Mrs. Edison's boudoir is naturally very attractive, as it is most homelike in appearance.

the standard of the standard o front windows there is a fine view of the Orange Valley. Adjoining this is her sleeping-room, from which a door leads to the roof of the conservatory. Over this, is summer, an awning is stretched, and here often a cup of tea is served in the afternoon, as it is a favorite lounging place of Mrs. Edison, with its divans, its table with all the pretty and dainty appointments for making tea, and its huge jars of making tea, and its huge jars of flowers.

There are many guest chambers, all upholstered in delicate cretonnes and dimities. The beds have small canopies arranged in the French style over each. There are rugs and cushions and pretty inlaid writing-tables in every room. I noticed two pictures, which possessed much interest. One was a photograph of Edison when a boy about 14 years of age. The other, a picture of Mrs. Edison taken at "sweet sixteen." shows a lovely, serious-faced maiden. The photograph of the first Mrs. Edison has a conspicuous place in one room.

The grounds surrounding Glenmont are extensive; a pretty lawn lles diflowers.

There is a wide and hospitable porch, at the front entrance, large enough to hold a settle, piled high with soft customs. There are benches, several chairs—hospitality beginning even before you stop over the threshold. Within, there is a charming air of comfort and luxury. The large, square hall is a room in itself, as the modern hall is designed to be, with a recessed window which forms a cosy nook with window seats. A carved oak table holds a curlous Japanese vase or jar; near it is a bouquet of roses—bunches of freshlygathered flowers greet you in every room in the house.

A large window over the second landing on the stairs is entirely of stained glass, a full-length figure of some mythological character being depicted upon it.

Mr. Edison's study or library is at the right of the hall. The bookcases, which line the sides of the room, are protected with qlass. A large fire place, with its mantel and polished brass andirons and fender, take up a charactery one side. A little nook or recess has more books and a window of stained glass, with Dante's head pictured tupon it.

Dante, I take it, is a favorite author of Mr. Edison's, for on the library table is a superb edition of that author's fish AND SNAKE.

An ambitious sportsman produces the following combination of fish and snake.

"I was fishing along the rocky creek in the Matilija late one afternoon in June. The sun had already disappeared behind a high mountain range, but several hours of light would yet remain. I was prepared for sport, and determined to catch a mess of trout. Flipping my files into a deep hole just below a small fall in the creek. I had the satisfaction of catching a fine twelve-luch 'speckled beauty.' Cutting a willow prong, I put on the fish, and tried again, but got nothing. As the creek is one continuation of falls, I soon moved down to another pool, and had good luck again in my first throw—a fourteen-inch trout. I held np the prong to put on the fish, when lo! only the head of my other trout remained. I was amazed. I looked closely at the head. It had been severed at one clean cut. Something had bitten it off. Perhaps it was a dog. But no. I would surely have head and put on the other fish. Going on a few rods. I retraced my steps and looked for footprints of the theiving animal, but saw none. After a few moments of caim, revengeful reflection I arose, determined to try my luck once more; but would you believe it, it was the same thing next time, I turned pale with anger, and sat down on a rock, held out my solitary fish, out of the four I had caught, and was wondering how long I would keep it, when suddenly, from behind a small willow about ten feet distant, plarge snake darted toward me. It came with such rapidity, in a direct line for me, head erect and tongue darting, that I was for a moment motionless, and the fish dropped from my grasp. The snake selzed the fish and retreated to cover quick as a flash. Ha! the mystery is solved, thought I. Revenge is mine! Drawing my revolver, cautiously approaching the willow, I saw his snakeship colled and watching me closely. Taking my revolver cautiously approaching the willow, I saw his snakeship colled and watching me closely. Taking my revolver cautiously a Napoleon's Knowledge of Civil Law.

During the long and difficult discusburing the long and difficult discussions in drawing up the Code Napoleon, French jurists and statesmen were astonished at the familiarity shown by the Emperor with the principles of Roman law. He told them, one day, that when he was a young lieutenant he was sent to solitary confinement for some slight breach of discipline. "The room had no furniture finement for some slight breach of discipline. "The room—had no furniture only an old chair and a dusty eupboard, in which I found one ponderous, musty, worm-eaten volume. It was a digest of Roman law. In those ten days of my imprisonment I had nothing else to do but to become saturated with Justinian and the words of Roman legislators and judges. Thus I acquired my knowledge of the principles of the civil law."

Ballad of the Baby. Checks that are dimpled and pink,
Twin roses abloom on a spray;
Red lips full-of love to the brink;
Soft glances that, pensive or gay,
A world of sweet meaning convey Wee fingers that flutter and cling,
A snowdrift of crumpled array—
This is the Baby, the King!

What though he tips over my ink, And drives my five wits all astray? Shall I grumble indeed, do you think, Because, in his innocent way. He wakes me long hours before day And wants me to walk and to sing? Why not, if it pleases him, pray? This is the Baby, the King!

Our fortunes they rise and they sink,
We let the world wag as it may:
Our lives narrow down to the chink
That encircles his Majesty. Nay,
Our lives and our fortunes we lay
At his feet, with his rattle and ring,
Content to adore him and say:
"This is the Baby, the King;"

ENVOY. Prince, you may boast of your sway,
'Its but an ephemeral thing!
The Empire of Hearts is for aye,
This is the Baby, the King!

The wild world hastens on its way;
The gray-haired century nears its close;
Its sorrow deepens day by day:
The summer blush forsakes the rose,
But, daring, while your voice I hear,
And while your dark-brown eyes I see,
Sad months and sunless seasons drear
Are all the same, all glad to me.
Despair can never reach me
While your soft hand I hold;
While your eyes love and teach me
I never shall grow old!

Many fair Belgravia hostesses have beseched and supplicated her to come into their parlors, but she has steadily refused to play the part of lioness to Mr. Stanley's lion. Indeed, it is said by those who should know, that Miss Tennant is greatly distressed that Stanley should have to suffer the infliction of such burdensome notoriety. Miss Tennant may well have such a feeling, seeing that Since her lover's return from the Dark Continent the world has claimed him for its own. After waiting such a weary time you have, of course, learned that Stanley and his bride plighted faith before he started on his perilous mission for the relief of Emin, and not knowing whether her hero was alive or dead, distracted by all sorts of terrible rumors, enduring her probation with the courage of a Roman matron.

Miss Tennant may well feel embittered against the lion-hunters and the celebrity bribers who have left her so little of Stanley's society. The only occasion on which Mr. Stanley and Miss Tennant have been seen together was one directly connected with the approaching wedding. One afternoon they drove in a closed carriage to that quaint institution in the city which is known by the odd name of Poctors' Commons, and of which Dickens has given such amusing descriptions. After procuring 'the special license authorizing the ceremony in Westminister Abbey, Stanley and Miss Tennant found

But although dislike of display, aversion to celebrity, is a keynote in Miss Dorothy Tennant's character, it must not be supposed that Stanley's bride is lacking in the social graces. A descendant of Cromwell, Miss Tennant has some of the austerity of the Puritan. In the portrait of G. F. Watts. R. A.; she is painted as holding a squirrel in her hand, the painter making an ingenious allusion to the animation and vivacity of her character. And now when the bloom of youth has passed the symbol is still true. In Sir J. The Name On a Door.

How varied are the pictures of life that one sees here in Los Angeles. The old and the new mingle, and we find as sharp contrasts as can be found in any city under the sun. I was out one evening last week for a ride on the cable cars. I took the Downey-avenue line, and as I rode along Upper Main street, past the long line of low adobes. I could but note the sharp contrast between them and that portion of the city I had just left. Not only does the native Californian abound here, and the dark-eyed señorita loiter in the fragrant dusk, but here "John" is entrenched, and his shops, with their Celestial signboards, line the way.

The shops were lighted as I passed, and the queer little restaurants and the quaint barber shops, and every now and then a half-opened door showed a sleeping apartment which was entirely innocent of any modern furnishing. In the shops the gay Chinese lanterns swung, and all sorts of Celestial wares were displayed. But John irad no customers at that hour, so he sat on his high stool lazily smoking his pipe, his arms folded and his eyes half closed, as if to him existence were only a dream. One or two Mongolian damsels I saw in one house, talking with their masters. Sad-eyed and hopeless creatures were they, and tis no difficult matter to determine that life would not be worth living if it had nothing more to offer than it brings to them.

one room was a great crowd of Celestials, all looking eagerly at some-thing which attracted their attention. The door was open wide, and what a picture they made! The light beyond them brought out their profiles dis-tinctly, and an uglier lot, as the American eye looks at ugliness, I certainly never beheld. And behind them all dropped the inevitable celestial "pig-tail," which gave an animal-like finish to the group, and was a line of demark-ation between semi-barbarism and cyrlligation. civilization.

Then there was a long line of blind walls along the way. The thick old adobe was gray and soundless. The plain heavy doors were closed, and the clumsy wooden blinds concealed every window, but through the tiny crack above each one I could see the fain est glimmer of light. What is the life go-ing on behind them, I wondered. It is not like ours. It is among us, but not of us.

By the roadside stood an old Californian with bronzed face and white hair, and by his side, a dusky señora, bent and wrinkled, leaning upon he bent and wrinkled, leaning upon her staff. They stood upon the paved side-walk to see the cars pass. They probably have not solved the mystery of the cable yet. It is still-strange to them to see it gliding so swiftly, yet so noiselessly, along the track, yet with nothing visible to propel it. How mysterious to them must be the ways of the new life that has come among them and taken possession of their ancient pueblo, and shaken off the drowsiness of its century, and filled it with the bustling and progressive life of today. More and more like a dream does the old past seem; farther and farther does it recede with every passing day, and the thought comes to them: "It has been, but shall be no more. Good-by, old past; you must be buried forever in the life of today."

Neighborhood quarrels are an easy

Neighborhood quarrels are an easy matter if the disposition to quarrel exists. In the western outskirts of the city lives a lady with her bright little boy of nearly 8 years. Just across the way is a woman with a houseful of noisy and untrained cherubs who are given to over-running their neighbors' grounds and making themselves perfectly at home wherever they chance to be. This family is the possessor of a large number of chickens that roam about at their own sweet will, and revel on the lawns and in the gardens of their neighbors.

A few days ago the lady who has the little son was ill, and, feeling unable to cook a dinner, she told the little boy he might boil himself a couple of eggs from the store, which she had just purchased. So she lighted the gasoline stove for him, and the proud juvenile cook proceeded to put the water into a small pan over the fire, and when it boiled the eggs were dropped in, and allowed to remain till they were bard. With the pride of a mighty conqueror the little fellow took them from the water when they were done, and when they had slightly cooled he took them in his chubby hands and carried them to the door to display them—the eggs which he had "cooked all by Neighborhood quarrels are an easy which he had "cooked all by himself." "See, see!" he exclaimed, as he held them up to the view of the small neighbors, while his heart throbbed as if he were another Alexander with no more worlds. other Alexander with no more worlds to conquer. But not into his delight did his neighbors enter. A family conclave was held at once, and in a moment the elder boy was dispatched across the way as a messenger for his mother bearing this demand.

"I have been aura for some time.

which your boy had to me immediately."

Foor little boy! How the world darkened for him then! Were the eggs which his mother had purchased, and that he with his own unaided skill had cooked, to be taken from him forever? "Mother," he said, in a tone of the most immeasurable disgust, "I 'spect that woman growed up before God finished her, she is so small."

The minister—a good man, particularly earnest and reverent—was enlarging upon the power which can be wielded through the concentrated effort of a united few, even against tremendous odds. Instancing the defense of Thermopylæ by Leonidas and his heroic three hundred, the speaker unconsciously drew upon his imagination—an American one at that—and exclaimed enthusinatically: "They said, 'We've got to hold this position if every last man of us drops in his tracks.'"

COL. LEN A. HARRIS.

Full of Years and Honors, He Goes to His Rest.

THE EARLY WAR DAYS RECALLED.

The Part He Bore in the Army and While Mayor of Cincinnati to Save His Country.

[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, July 6.] Col. Leonard A. Harris died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, 400 West Seventh street—the house which was presented to him by the citizens of Cincinnati in gratitude for his distinguished services to the city. The news of his death was heard with regret by all, and with deep sorrow by that large circle of men who knew him thoroughly and who loved him for his peculiarly strong qualities. The end came rather unexpectedly, Col. Harris was born in this city, Col. Harris was born in this city, October 11, 1824. He lived here during his entire life, and during the past thirty-five years has been a prominent figure, first in war times, then in politics, and latterly in the quieter but none the less useful walks of public service. His education was begun in the common schools of the city, and would have ended there but for his paraistence and eagerness for knowlpersistence and eagerness for knowledge. He has been a great student ever since he was 21 years old, and had accumulated a vast store of knowledge, which his strong mind enabled him to put to the most excellent uses.

Col. Len A. Harris.

He first came into prominence with the breaking out of the war. The firing on Fort Sumter aroused him, and he was one of the first to raise a volunteer company. It was attached to the Second Ohio, and he was captain. At the disastrous rout of Bull Run the First and Second Ohio were the two regiments that did not fall into disorder, and Capt. Harris had much to do with keeping them intact 'as far as Fairfax. Courthouse. In succeeding actions he

Then Col. Harris, by a bold movement, escaped with all his men from the untenable position and rejoined Buell. That General was astonished and confessed that he expected to hear that Harris and his command were killed or price of the state of the state

Harris and his command were killed or prisoners.

At Perryville, Harris was in command of a brigade. The division to which it was assigned sustained the hottest fire, entering the battle with eight thousand meu, only thirty-two hundred of whom suswered to roll-call afterward. His bravery here was so marked and excited such general comment that his promotion would certainly have followed, but he was taken with one of the severest of those diseases which blight an army, and was compelled to return home. was compelled to return home.

diseases which blight an army, and was compelled to return home.

So strongly were his services appreciated at home that he was nominated and elected mayor. This was in the spring of 1863. Those were much-troubled times, and a firm and cool head was peculiarly necessary in the Mayor's office. Col. Hartis was just the man. In the fall Brough ran against Vallandigham for Governor of Ohio. There were continual small outbreaks in the city, and on one or two occasions embryo riots. Mayor Harris organized the police force on a military basis, and defended the peace of the city bravely and successfully. One night, when a mob started to wreck the Enquirer office, he led the police in person and drove the rioters into flight and panic.

It was shortly after this that he drafted the famous "hundred-day men" law. Men were needed badly at the front. The war governors promised them to the President and Gen. Grant. Gov. Brough took Harris into consultation as to how the promise could be carried out. Harris drafted the bill them to the President and Gen. Grant. Gov. Brough took Harris into consultation as to how the promise could be carried out. Harris drafted the bill which, as a law, sent the National Guard of Ohio into the field. In this way 43,000 men went from Ohio alone, while Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York sent 120,000 men. This avalanche broke the bulwarks of the Rebellion and overwhelmed the exhausted South. The One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Ohio was one of these regiments, and Col. Harris took command of it.

In 1865 he was reelected Mayor by 8000 majority. Up to this time he had been a Republican, having run for Sheriff on the Republican ticket in 1856, when Fremont was the Republican candidate for President. In 1866 he was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue by President Johnson. He followed the fortunes of the man who appointed him and soon afterward became a Democrat. He continued in this political faith until he died. In the spring of 1878 he was the candidate of that party for Mayor, and was defeated by Charles Jacob, Jr.

A few years ago he was appointed by President Cleveland to the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' Homes. He was elected vice-president of this, and during the last year, in the absence of the president, Gen. Franklin, in Europe, he has done the executive work. He was highly esteemed by his fellow-members for his zeal and his honesty and his fine abilities.

Taken altogether, his life was of remarkable usefulness to his fellow-beings. Few men have been so favored by opportunity or so well able to selze opportunities offered. With all his distinguished services in war and peace, he was a modest and unassuming man, little given to reverting to his own deeds, but rather preferring to look forward into the future and see what might yet be accomplished.

Within the last few months he began to feel the weight of his 65 years. He had long been troubled with a disease of the liver. Three weeks ago he was compelled to take to his bed. But so gently did death take hold upon bim that he thought he would be able to attend the meeting of the Soldiers' Homes managers in Boston, and had engaged a sleeper, to leave last evening.

Wednesday he began to seem much wednesday he began to seem much weaker, and from that time the truth became apparent. He retained consciousness and intelligence until the last. His wife and his mother, the only near llying relatives, were with him.

for many years. By order of Col. J.
B. Thomas, the Governor of the Home, the flag was dropped to half-mast, and

and their grief and that of the officers

Mrs. Harris.

ANECDOTES OF COL. HARRIS. The death of Col. Lea A. Harris removes a picturesque figure from the haunts of men about town. Col. Harris was a soldier from his boot heels to the crown of his head, and a good one, too. When Bueli left him at Fort McCook, the ramparts of which had been mounted with "quaker" guns to conceal from the enemy the withdrawal of the Union forces, he never expected to see him again, and when the Colonel turned up at headquarters Buell looked up at him from his writing and said, grimly: "You here? I never expected to see you again." "I got here," was Col. Harris's terse reply.

QUEEN CITY APPRECIATION.

Col. Harris was a man of undannted courage, and in the troublous times that this city experienced during the draft it was his cool head and steady hand at the helm that prevented much rioting and bloodshed. The handsome two-story brick house, at 400-West Seventh street, in which Col. Harris lived for more than a quarter of a century, and in which he died yesterday, was presented to the Colonel by the citizens of the city as a token of their appreciation for the work he did in suppressing the lawless elements that were so near the surface. It is not often that the people do such a handsome thing, and to recall this is of tiself a pleasant tribute to a brave man.

keeping them intact as far as Fairfax. Courthouse. In succeeding actions he so distinguished himself for gallantry that he received permission from President Lincoln to return home and raise a regiment.

When he first went late the war-her knew nothing of military tactics. But that intense earnestness which characterized him in all that he did soon caused him to master not only the principles and practice of military tactics, but also much of the art of war, which lies back of it. He seemed to be a born soldier. He possessed the ability to besition if every last man of us drops in his tracks.""

I enjoyed the delightful privilege, the other day, of inspecting the wedding presents of a golden-haired young by ide who had recently actived all the way from Scotland to make her future home in Los Angeles. Among the collection was a richly-bound Bible presented after the traveler was on board the cars (on the "train," as she styled it,) to start on her long journey. After the inscription and date on the blank leaf at the beginning of the book the friend giving it had noted the text, Philippians 1:27. Turning to the passage I found it read: "Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that whether I come and see you or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for the faith of the gospel." I don't suppose a more appropriate text could have been searched from Genesis to Revelations; but the Scotch are generally credited with being pretty well up in their Bibles.

W. T. Wilson contributes to the Commercial Gazette the following:
"The death of Col. Leu Harris recalls to my mind the first Federal offensive movement' during the late war. April 19, 1861, Col. Jones. now Lieutenant-Governor of New York, at the head of the Sixth Massachusetts, pushed through Baltimore with the loss of two men and encamped on the Randall farm, near the Relay House, nine miles from Baltimore. On the 20th of April the Second Ohio, under Col. Mason, with Leu Harris as Lieutenant-Colonel, turned Baltimore by the right fank, via Frederick pike, and cut off St. Timothy's Military Academy, where there were eight hundred Confederate students with arms and artillery. THE COAT WAS RENTED.

How a Big Man Suffered in a Little Coat.

OPIE READ'S LATEST STORY.

It Enabled Him to Make an Amusing Exhibition of Himself at His Friend's

[COPYRIGHT, 1890—FOR THE TIMES.]
The large man whom circumstances have forced to rent a dresscoat is almost as much deserving of pity as the man that has been unjustly condemned to be hanged. I will give my reasons for thinking so. Several weeks ago a friend came to me and said:

"Look here, old fellow, 1 am going to give a musical entertainment and I want you to help me out."

"How can I help you out?" I asked.
"The only music I ever made was turning a grindstone accompaniment to the flesh-creeping tremulo of a scythe."

"Oh, I don't want you to make any music—only want you to recite something; some little thing, it doesn't make any difference what—tell that story you told us at the club the other night—just tell anything you know."

I shook my head; he continued: "All we want you to do is to give us a little something to fill in with—won't amount to anything, you know."

"I am afraid that it is beyond my ability to grant your request," said I.

ability to grant your request," said I.
"The truth is, I haven't the courage to place my awkward anatomy in a perpendicular position and address an audience."

"What! as large a man as you are and haven't that much courage?"

"Ah! but size is the trouble. If I were small the trial would be less. There would not be so much of me to feel embarrassed. As the most famous of social hypocrites said in a letter to his son: 'Superior height requires superior grace.'" feel embarrassed. As the most famous of social hypocrites said in a letter to his son: 'Superior height requires superior grace.'"

"Nonsense," my friend rejoined. "You'd look first-rate in a dresscoat."

"But I have none."

"Why, hang it, rent one. I'll go out with you and in less than half an hour you'll be ditted like a tailor's model. Now, look here," he added, persuasively, "it won't do to disappoint me, for, the fact is, I was so sure that you would help me out that I have had your name printed on the programme. Oh! it won't take you more than ten minutes," he soothingly added, noticing my nervousness. "All you've got to do is to step out, say your little piece, make your bow, and that ends it. Don't you remember that I came out to your house some time ago and played during the entire evening?"

I did remember, and thus thrown by the "under-hold" of gratitude, I could do nothing but yield.

The entertainment was to take place the following Thursday evening, giving me almost a week's time to brood over the coming trial. Never, except on one miserable occasion in Kentucky, years ago had I ever attempted to address an audience, and the memory of that occasion's hot embarassment often comes in feverish dreams to strangle me with humiliation. I was editing a weekly newspaper; five feet by four feet and a half, in Bowling Green, and was compelled to write, every seek, nine columns of the brain-wearing' thought, and surely after so great a literary out-put I was in no condition to address a convention of bee-keepers; but the proprietor declared that as his paper was the recognized organ of the bee-keeping industry, it would be a disgrace if I did not say something. I was shoved forward, but do not now recall even the substance of my speech. I know that a red-haired man gazed at me and then neighed like a clover-fed coit, and that a pug-nose fellow from over the creek squealed like a peach-orchard shote.

I thought of all this while dejectedly musing over the coming recitation, but there was one feature that shed hote.

I thought of all this while dejectedly musing over the coming recitation, but there was one feature that shed a smile of encouragement—the swallow-tail coat. I should appear so trim, so fashionable, that people of fashion, seem that I was one of their guild, would give me their sympathy.

Thursday afternoon I went with my friend to get the coat. "I have one staked out that will just fit you," said he. "I have engaged in this business so often that I can look at a coat and the said of tell if it will fit. Let's go in here."

We went in. Oh, yes, the clerk had the very coat, knew it was large enough; had been made for a big fellow that lectured at a cyclorama. If the control is the control is the control is the control in the control in the control in the control is the control in the c displayed. On the lapel a dried piece of flannel-cake was held in place by a daub of maple sirup. The coat had evidently been present at a wedding Oh, a little benzine will take that

"On, a little benzine will take that off," said the clerk.
"Try it on," the musician urged.
"Wat a minute," I remarked.
"How about this hole under the arm?"
The clerk tried to patch the hole with a look, but failed. "Oh, our tailor can fix that," said he.
"Can make it look better than ever,"

"Can make it look better than ever," the musician enthusiastically declared.
"But look here," said I. "One claw is almost torn off."

"That can be fixed in ten minutes," the clerk remarked.
"Oh, in less time," the musician cheerfully exclaimed.
"Have you another coat?" I asked.
"I've got one that is the very thing, but it is out. You can have it tomorrow."

said the musician, holding up the lacerated scare-crow.

"It is an elegant piece of goods," the clerk responded.

In one more moment I should have resorted to violence, but the musician drew me away. We went to another place. The clerk looked at the numbers on a stack of coats and shook his head. "Hold on," he said, as we were about to leave the store, and then remarked: "If Philberts has brought that coat back I think I can fit you."

He pulled open a drawer and said: "Ah!" Philberts had brought the coat back. He advanced, holding the thing in front of him. It looked like an alapaca jacket with two dangling shoestrings intended to represent tails.

"The very thing!" cried the musician. I tried it on, or, rather, tore off one sleeve in the attempt. Mr. Philberts must have been a living skeleton. Out in the street again, perplexed, worried into perspiration and profanity. At the next place I asked the clerk if he had any swallow-tail coats for men. Oh! yes, he had a large stock. The first one he brought out would have cramped the form of an ideal Juliet; the second would have distressed Camille, even if put on during the fag end of her fatal illness; the third might have been passed on favorably by the ossified man, and the fourth—well, I crowded myself into it. The clerk smiled, and the musician declared that it was a beauty. "Oh! you must take it!" he exclaimed. "Looks tip-top—out of sight. Soon be time to go to the hall, you know."

"I know, but I can't raise my arm. See?"

"Oh, you don't want to raise your arm. In a humorous recitation you must stand perfectly still."

"But it pinches me under the arms." "Oh! come, now. What difference does that make? Everything pinches—life pinches, for that matter, but you don't want to throw off your life simply because it does pinch a little. Put on your overcoat and come ahead."

I sat on an uneasy chair waiting for my turn—was to appear immediately after a slim young man in a nicelyfitting coat should finish singing "Jack II store a slim young man in a nicelyfitting co

I got through with my piece and then attempted to vanish, as trained stage people do, without turning round, but failed. A graceful vanish was beyond my skill. The people roared and I was forced to tell another story; and, encouraged by the outbursts of appreciation, felt the thrilling leap of the suddenly acquired blood of bravery; still at the close of the second recitation could not vanish gracefully. When I turned to go the audience roared louder than ever, but, determined to run no risk of failure after so brilliant a success, I hastened atter so brilliant a success, I hastoned to the greenroom flushed with the excitement of victory. My friend and the other musicians—the young manwho had sung "Jack Is Every Inch a Sailor"—all yelled. I was not long in discovering the true cause of my great success. The rented atrocity that I wore was split down the back from collar to tails. This was not the only humiliation, for one of the newspapers, in referring to my part of the performance, said:

ance, said:

"His idea of fun is of a very low order. Not having the humor of idea, he substituted a disgraceful clownishness—the miserable trick of putting on a coat, slit in the back, and then turning around so that the audience could see the 'joke.' We would advise him to the course of the co not to appear again in public, at least not until he learns the difference between respectable humor and disreputable trickery."

Silent Theatrical Partners.
¡New York Sun.]
One interesting development of theatrical lawsuits is that the names of entirely unknown men are nearly always brought out by them. The unknown is nearly always the backer of the enterprise, and he takes half of the star's earnings. Even the most successful theatrical men have these silent partners. They have nothing to do with the profession, and are, as a rule, business men who are conservative by habit, but who see the large financial gains possible in theatrical enterprises. The other day the fact was brought out that Nat Goodwin, who is a rich man and who was supposed to own his show absolutely, had a partner of this sort.

Reversal of Hat and Bonnet Customs - Gay Hammook Frocks - Tollets at Long Branch.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890—FOR THE TIMES.]
"Can you tell me who that lady is?"
asked a sweet-faced, white-haired woman, as she leaned back under the shade of a fine old oak and indicated with a scarcely perceptible motion of her head another of the guests at a pretty tennis tournament last Wednesday on Staten Island. "Indeed I do not know."

"I ask because she has passed the hat age. Isn't it distressing to see a woman who ten years ago should have resigned herself contentedly to bonnets coming out in such a flaring

Dear, innocent soul; she was not in de siecle, or is there yet a newer and fin de siecle, or is there yet a newer and slangier method of expressing upness with the times? Ten years sgo every woman of matronly dignity bought bonnets with cheerful alacrity; butthis season the single corymb of fine white elder flowers mixed with the sprays of maidenhair fern which the milliners are sending out from Upper Fifth avenue dubbed with that title belongs to the very early summer of life, while its harvest days seek protection instinctively under the grateful shade of wide straws that hide the lines in the forehead and the tracks of the crows about the eyes. Startling as it seems at first blush, there is something logical about the reversal of hat and bonnet customs.

first blush, there is something logical about the reversal of hat and bounet customs.

The lady to whose appearance my friend objected was a Philadelphian, whose claims to knowledge of millinery laws, or even power to make them, would be respected by Ward McAllister. She was handsome, middle-aged, and in light mourning. Her black foolard gown was looped with yellow white ribbons, and her large poke hat, of black lace straw, carried a wreath of black flowers on the outside, and had two narrow bands of white velvet drawn about the under side of the brim. Startling! So be it, but not unbecoming, nor, as such things are now regulated, unsuitable.

There are pretty bonnets on view at Brighton on afternoons when the Seidl Society lunches and listens to the music of His Majesty, Wagner. Laurs Holloway Langford flits about busily, and is even more enthusiastically interested in lecture and concert devices to keep women at home, and reduce the number of unhappy "summer widowers," than before she herself had taken a busband. A tall woman with the effective combination of rosy, youthful face, dark eyes and white hair, wore a hat of silver gray gauze do chiffon a few days ago. It was trimmed with superb sprays of the dark, glossy leaves and pink and white flowers of the mountain laurel. A winsome girl from Georgia, with a naive childlike face and a warm southern skin wore a white openwork straw, trimmed with white clematis flowers. A woman who looked like Mme. Lanza, but wasn't even acquainted with the Marquise, wore a Rubens hat of a pale mauve straw that was untrimmed in front, but had on one side a cluster of those weird white things you find among the pine needles in the woods and call Indian pipes. With her was a young woman in one of the a cluster of those weird white things you find among the pine needles in the woods and call Indian pipes. With her was a young woman in one of the many varieties the sailor hat has taken, a black straw with a cord of yellow velvet under the brim and a knot of yellow velvet at the back, through which were thrust half a dozen exceedingly pert white wings.

On the boat going to Long Branch yesterday was a sweet little Priscilla of a creature in a pinkish-gray gown, who was made fairly a guy by her starched shirt bosom and masculine necktie. Imagine her shy, pretty meekphosed. An actress who is a favorite with women was on the boat, but I am not going to tell you what she were. It would take away most of one's pleasure in going to the theater if one were to see much of many of the actresses off the stage. A young girl, whom one used to see everywhere last spring with Mrs. Cleveland, wore a very quaint costume. It was a one-piece slip of polka-dot green foulard with Greek draperies. Picture to yourself socrates in a dress shirt, but wearing with it, instead of a swallow-tail coat, his own familiar himation, and you have some idea of the oddity of the classic folds of this bodice drawn half across an expanse of polished lawn that reached nearly to the waist line. To complete the confusion of styles the triangle of the shirt bosom was defined by a wide ruffle of white crepe liese, and about the neck, instead of a four-in-hald tie, was a high, box-plaited crepe liese ruff. The sleeves were high on the shoulders, full to the elbows and gathered into long gauntlet cuffs of white lawn. Her hat was rice straw, coming to a peak above the forehead, and trimmed with green ribbons. She was the Athenian maid and the tailor girl fashionably and funnily rolled into one.

In one more moment I should have resorted to violence, but the musician drew me away. We went to another place. The clerk looked at the numbers on a stack of coats and shook his head. "Hold on," he said, as we were about to leave the store, and then remarked: "If Philberts has brought.

and trimmed with green ribbons. She was the Athenian maid and the tailor girl fashionably and funnily rolled into one.

Between Long Branch and the Atlantic Highlands are stretches of pine woods where the blue berries grow aweet. Along the sandy roads that thread these wildernesses are dotted cottages, and in the shade beside those cottages you may now study the hammock frock, with its broad-trimmed hat, its gay ribbon garniture and its graceful shadowy draperies. In course of a drive yesterday afternoon I noted a very fair girl with a pale face shaded by a flat black straw hat with a cluster of black bows standing up in front on the brim. She lay back in a hammock under a chestnut tree, and her gown was a soft gray green delaine sprigged with pink, the bodice open to the waist and filled in with clear muslin ruffles after the manner of the "Beau Brummeil" costumes. There were big pink roses lying across her lap and as the hammock swayed you caught a glimpse of small black patent leather slippers.

Half a mile further along a pretty, yellow-haired girl was swinging between two pines. She wore a white challie in a Dresden rosebud pattern made with a quaint, straight, flowing simplicity. On the grass lay a youth in a blazer, and he was reading to her one of Rudyard Kipling's tales. In the background hovered a child in a gay little cotton frock, its mouth stained with berries, and a great flaming meadow lily in its chubby hand.

At a garden party out at Flushing, L. I., last week, there was some attractive dressing. One girl wore a costume of striped India siik, in heliotrope and white, with one of those long waists—somebody says they reach to your knees—fastened behind, and long leg-o'-mutton sleeves with lace frills falling over the hands. Her hat was a black straw, trimmed with sprays of heliotrope flowers. A simple gown of brown foulard, spotted with white, was very becoming. It had a deep Swiss belt and narrow shoulder knots of brown velvet ribbons. Its wearer had beit and narrow shoulder knots of brown velvet ribbons. Its wearer had a brown straw hat, prettily bent back from her curly hair and trimmed with old-fashioned pinks of the fragrant sort that the children in the old Bay State call "busters;" because why? They "bust" open at the side. One of the prettiest frocks was a Freich redingote of white serge, opening over a front of pale primrose yellow silk, and worn with a large white hat trimmed with the open flowers of the evening primrose. Several girls wore the wash silk blouses in fresh delicate colors, which are so much prettier for average feminine humanity, and so much more comfortable for everybody than the starched shirt bosom.

The early summer weddings are about over, but at one of the last were noted some smart bridesmaids' costumes. The ceremony was performed in a country church, and the four maids noted some smart bridesmaids costumes. The ceremony was performed in a country church, and the four maids wore daffodil-tinted silk muslins, with white straw hats covered with white and yellow roses. A young girl in the audience—I think she was the bride's cousin; at any rate, she wept profusely enough to have been almost any relation—wore a, dainty dress of white figured organdie, with hat trimmed with blue corn flowers. Near her sat a woman in pearl gray bengaline combined with old rose. Her hat was black lace trimmed with gray ribbon and pluk roses. The prettiest girl I saw wore a white cloth dress with a border of pink poppies and a yoke of old rose velvet. Her hat was adorned with poppies like those on her gown.

ELLEN OSBORN.

Patient Little Algerian Wives.
[Utica Observer.]

The same general rule that the wife shall wait upon her husband seems as prevalent here as in Algiers. At the station we saw a beautiful young wife, of whose Teatures I caught a brief glimpse as sho was arranging her head drapery. She had come to see her husband off by the train, and not only carried his hand-luggage to the station for him, but stood in line at the ticket office while he lounged about and smoked with his friends. After a weary wait she carried his packages again to the train, put them in the car for him, and then took his proffered hand, and bending low over it, kissed it reverently. And this was a delicate looking girl about 20 years of age, dressed in garments of the finest texture, her neck, arms and ankles covered with jewels, while her, lord and master was a stalwart young man and not glimpse as she was arranging her head was a stalwart young man and not more than 30 years old. LITTLE JACK HORNER.

"Little Jack Horner eat in the corner, Eating his Christmas pie; He stuck in his thumb and pulled out a plum And eatd—what a good boy am I"

O the darling sitting there,
With his rosy cheeks so fair;
With eyes of hlue,
Where smiles look through,
And pretty shining hair.

Lying on the table's top,
Where the buzzing flies do stop.
See them slipping
Where is dripping
A single honied drop.

"Naughty flies, you run away."
This is what the boy doth say:
"Shoo! Shoo! Shoo! Shoo!"
And quick they flew
Out where the sunshine lay.

Happy bee and singing bird, All the air with music stirred, While to the ky Scared butterfly, As if their song he heard—

And feared that it would melt away;
As if the glad soul of the day
Lay with it there,
In deeps of air,
So sweet that it could not stay.

And the tender breezes rock Lity white and hollyhook, And the roses' Bloom reposes On its tall and slender stock. Laughs the pepper in the sun, Its green branches, every one, Shimmering soft, Swaying aloft, Where the giad breezes run.

Calias stand in robes of snow; Little purple pansies blow, And pinks are red, While overhea! Morning glory bells ring low.

Mid the growing grasses green All the cretty sheep are seen; Pussy willows, In the meadows, Lift their heads the leaves between.

Orange flowers are winter's snow, And the bright days come and go Beauty laden; Boy and maiden Only summer gladness know— Here in summer land so fair, So I wonder why you are, Dear Jack Horner In the corner, So idly sitting there.

Boys and girls, we'll peep and see, Find what little Jack can be Th uking about. O he's pulled out A plum from his pie, you see.

Under the crust like a flake of snow, See his little thumb does go. Another plum!
Out with his thumb.
He pulls while laughing low.

"What a good boy am I," says he,
"Come and have some plums with me.
He holds them out
With happy shout
For the children all to see.

May 21, 1800.

Dear grandpapa: On the 18th of May paps took me again to Potsdam. We left our house, or apartment, at 9 in the morning and arrived at Potsdam at noon. We right off went to Sanssouel. It is just lovely there. The trees are all green. Thinki there I heard to my great pleasure for the first time the cookoo cry in the woods, "cookoo! cookoo!" It was beaulful. Blackbirds and other birds were also singing amidst them. The old parson, Mr. Quaqua, made himself loud.

At first papa went with me to the Friedenskirke, in where Frederick III, Emperor of Germany, with his two sons lays. It has a picture in Mosaic of the time when Amesica was discovered. From there we went to Babbesberg. This castle was the castle of old William, where he lived in summer. It is not a nice castle. It looks like a prison, and it is so still and has very small windows. His bed is a small wooden bed, and has a gray cover over it. His rooms all have candle lights, and a few lamps, but nothing else. All is plain in the castle. In his baliroom he has blue sitk chairs. There are also many things in his paiace. There is a stick which he made and used fortynine years, and a white chair which Emperor Frederick made when a young prince. Your FREDDY.

And here is still another letter from the same bright little boy:

And here is still another letter from the same bright little boy:

Dear granpapa: I will not tell you about the Passion Play, because you read auntie's letters. I must say you would love to be in the mountains here. O I wish you could come here. The mountain cafions here are fine, with trees and water. When we were in Munich first we went to the church which is eight hundred years old, and the very newest parts are two hundred years old. The church's name is "Dom." It has many grand old figures in it. It has two windows which are four hundred years old. All is beautiful in that old church. Then we took a cab and drove in the English garden which is also in Munich, it has a pretty brook in it. Munich is an old roccoo city. All the houses are a hundred and lifty or two hundred or seven hundred years old. It is a great old church. From there we went to a fine pleture gallery where we saw mostly holy pictures—"The Birth of Christ." "The Death of Christ," and, to our great surprise, we saw an old Retterburg, about five hundred years old on a high hill. Good-by Friedd.

Isn't it plensant to read the letters of this little boy? We are very much obliged to the good grandpapa and aunty, who permit us to share them with them.

And, now, here is a letter from a little girl nearer home:

EAST LOS ANGELES, June 25, 1800.

Dear Mrs. Otis: I have been trying to write you a letter for a long time, but never have got to it yet, so I will write tonight. My grandma has been staying with us for a week, but she went home this morning. Now my aunt is visiting a lady on the other side of town, and when she goes home I am going with her to stay a week. I do not think I would leave my school to do this, but I have had the measles, so I won't have to go to school any more this year. My grandma lives in Orange, and when I go there I think that I shall go and see the place where I used to live. Well, I am getting the form one of your friends.

one of my children and with it a story of a brave boy who helped to support his mother.

JUNE 28, 1880.

Dear Mrs. Otls: I have read some very interesting stories and letters in the children's page, so I thought I would write a short story for it and a letter for you. It took me two weeks to write it, its title is "Three Worthy Children." I have been promoted to the A sixth class, and our last day of school was last Friday, we are going to have two months' vacation. I am very glad. I had an average of 90, so I am going to get a book from the public library.

THREE WORTHY CHILDREN.

When Jack was about 14 years of age his father died, leaving about 4400, of which Jack got 5400, his sister $100, and his mother $200. All the education Jack had at that time was gained in the little village school, which was a mile away, to which he went-very little. About two weeks after his father's death his mother said: "Jack, father is dead, and you are the only person that I can depend upon for our future support. If you work hard we might get along very well." Jack said nothing, but went outside into the garden to think about it. In sittle time George Agru came whistling by. Jack ran to him and told him his story, and talked about it a long time, till at last it was decided that both boys were to think of some business at which two could work together, for George lived in the Orphans' Home, and was glad to have a chance to start in life.

First, George suggested that a floral business would be good; but because wild flowers did not grow there that suggestion was dropped.

At last something struck Jack: "A newaper at stand." "The right there for the

At last something struck Jack: "A newspaper stand." "The right thing for the first." Just then Jack's mother called him, and the talk was to be continued the next next morning. When Jack awoke he hurried down stairs, washed his face and hands and started for George, He found him waiting at the door.

"Helio, Jack!" cried George, "look." He then put his hand into his pocket and took out a book and twenty silver deliars, which he had saved from his little earnings. "Here's our capital," said George, "and here is the book where we can find out where to buy papers, and get 25 per cent. discount on magazines, and three for 5 cents for daily papers. How is that?"

"That's fine," said Jack. "I'll tell you what, let's go up town now and see if we can rent a stand."

"That's a go," said George, and they started. When they reached the main street they saw in a lot some boards with old nails in them. They found the owner, who not only let them take the lot but bullt a nice stand for them out of those boards. The next day, while Jack was eating breakfast, he felt he must tell his mother about it, so he said: "Mother, I have thought about supporting us. George Agru and I are going to open a newspaper stand up town tomorrow."

"Mr. Pity has let us take his lot, and he has built a pretty little stand upon it for nothing." cried his mother, "How smart

"Mr. Pity has let us take his lot, and he has built a pretty little stand upon it for nothing."

"Jack I" cried his mother, "How smart you are. I would have never thought of such a thing."

"Jessie shall bring you dinner every day, and George can live with us."

Every one was happy now, but Jack the most. So the day passed along very quickly. The next morning at 6 o'clock the boys were at the stand and set the papers which they had bought a day ago in order, and wrote the prices on cardboard.

The whole day long they stayed there and sold only one paper. It went so for a week, when the boys were nearly about to give it up. The next week was better; the next better still, and so on, till they were obliged to get a book to write the orders in.

They had about two hundred customers, and still increasing. George tended to the stand, while Jack delivered the papers. In about a year they added to the trade candy, peanuts, cigars and tobacco. The next year they rented a store in the center of the business part of that town, and on the main street. As the years passed by the boy and girl grew large, as well as the business, and the mother lived long cnough to know that her son and adopted boy and daughter were getting along aplendidly.

George and Jack would go to the business, while Jessie would cook the meals.

After they saved enough money they built them a comfortable residence, in which they lived till they died. And what became of the business? It was sold, and to the owner it was of great credit. End. E. K.

The past week has been the dullest since the summer season set in, and with the exception of one or two stray weddings nothing of importance has transpired in social circles. Even the watering-places have been exceedingly quiet, although the prospects for a lively season were never better. Quite a number of San Francisco society people, according to seaside hotel men. booked for Southern California during the next month or two, and it is believed that several of the leaders from that city will take up their headquarters at one of the big beach hotels in Southern California.

Ever since the invitations were issued, several weeks ago, the members of the circle were on the tip-toe of curicity, excited by a few remarks inadvertently dropped as to the nature of the entainment to be given by the ladies. On the eventful evening the expectant chautauquans found that an elaborate Roman feast had been prepared. They were ushered into an apartment fitted up in Roman style, at the end of which a stage had been erected, and a play, the joint work of Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. McComas, based upon Roman history, bringing in many quotations from the Latin poets, was presented with much spirit by Judge and Mrs. McComas, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, the Misses McComas and Lawrence. The diningroom with its tables loaded with fruits and flowers, surrounded by guests seated upon cushions, while fair "Roman" ladies dispensed the refreshments, was a scene that would have delighted an artist's eye. NORDHOFF, July 10 .- [Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Mr. E. Twining has arrived from San Francisco and taken charge of the gypsum mine. Thirteen men are at work making a road to the ledge and teams will be hauling in about three weeks. Shipments will then begin at the rate of twenty tons per day, increasing as the excavations allow the working of more men. It is the development of such resources as this that will make the Ojai more famous and bring greater prosperity to her residents.

residents.

The discovery of natural gas some months ago on William Pirle's ranch, one mile south of Nordhoff, led to testing that locality for oil. A well was sunk and is now down two hundred and seventy-eight feet with about one hundred feet of oil in it. A pump has been ordered and the capacity of the well will be tested. Should it prove to be a paying investment other wells will be put down immediately. This is some six miles west and about two north of the Santa Paula oil belt, but the great success of the companies in that region has caused the development of many new fields in this county, and from present indications the Ojai will soon come in for her

Rev. Selah Brown's Lecture on the Witch of Endor"-The Frauds of Modern Spiritualism, and How Exposed-Notes.

LONG BEACH, July 12-Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The trains for Long Beach were full today, and many have been here to enjoy the whitecaps which today's breeze has scattered all over the water. The assembly of the Epwerth League opened as usual with devotional exercises by Rev. Weber, followed by a very interesting "children's hour," and the lecture before the school of the English Bible, by Dr. W. A.

Just before the morning lecture Miss Gertrude Neiverl of Pomana sang "The Tempest." Miss Neiverl has a magnificent voice, deep and rich, and was called back by the pleased audiand delivered his lecture on "The Witch of Endor." The following will convey an idea of its contents:

Three thousand years ago Saul rejected God and God rejected Saul. The bewildered King sought information of a woman having a familiar spirit, known as the Witch of Endor. The Doctor pictured the weird scene of the night meeting of Saul and the only witch he had left alive.

To the great surprise of both persons, Samuel's spirit appeared and said to Saul, "Tomorrow you shall be a dead man." This came to pass. God cursed Saul and slew him because he had consulted a witch instead of his God. Spiritualism is thousands of years old. It began in the garden when the spirit tempted Eve. Modern spiritualism began forty-two years ago, in the city of Rochester, appropriately on April 1st. Two girls claimed to hear supernatural raps. They themselves did it with the joints of the ankle and toes to amuse themselves by deluding their parents and friends. They have since publicly confessed to their fraud. The first answer they had was that of a spirit who said that he had been killed and buried in the cellar. The remains were never found. Spiritualism spread from this over the country and across the sea. Since, we have manifestations of spirits moving tables, flashing lights, writing sealed letters, appear-of spirits moving tables, flashing lights, writing sealed letters, appearing to view, speaking and making themselves felt by contact, performing music on planos and violins and healing diseases. Such are the facts of modern spiritism, and not half is told.

modern spiritism, and not half is told.

Spiritism appeals to our desire to see into the world of spirits, to see our dead friends, to pick locks which the Almighty has closed. We long to see the dear ones, to clasp their hand just once, if for only a moment. Spiritism says: "Mourning one, I have a message from your dear one." Alas, that they should be deceived this way! Is there anything in it? Yes, there is, the devil is in it. I think I can account for these unusual things in three ways: First, by Nature's laws; second, fraud, treachery, slight-of hand; third, satanic agency. There are questions in Nature's laws which we do not understand; in electric phenomena, mesmerism, and all that is embraced in the term physic force. I believe that nine-tenths of this is fraud and humbuggery. It began by deception. believe that nine-tenths of this is fraud and humbuggery. It began by deception. Hundreds of mediums have been detected in their frauds, and scores have confessed. Raps by knee and ankle joints, by electrical contrivances, secret doors opening in walls, floor and baseboards, rubber arms and legs, robes and phosporous, wonderful photographic apparatuses, books read in the dark by the light of a phosporous bottle. All these pull the wool down over the eyes of ten thousand dupes.

The lecturer asked "What has spiritualism done for the world? Why does it not come out of its darkness and do something? I want something better than the ringing of my dinner-bell after dinner, or my Methodist chair set to dancing in my parlor. Let the spirits come in the daylight, not with the owls and bats in the dark. If they are from the glorious world what will they care for our little midday sun? If from the lower regions, what care they from the lower regions, what care they for a place where the thermometer is only 90°? The world is full of spirits, but not such as those of which we have been talking. Their visits are frequent, and they bear us up and guard us. Consult not familiar spirits and necrosure for the Bible says such as Consult not familiar spirits and necromancers, for the Bible says such are an abomination and of the devil.

The Doctor has had considerable experience with mediums. He has successfully exposed the Davenport brothers and Fay, and carries a beautifully carved gold watch, on the inside lid of which is engraved the statement that it is a present from the citizens of Titusville, Pa., for his ingenious exposition of their humbuggery. The manner in which he did it and the consternation produced, when told by the Doctor himself, makes an entertaining recital.

At 7:30 Mrs. Alice J. Osborne of Boston conducted another delightful musical prelude. The people cannot say too much in praise of Mrs. Osborne's sweet voice.

Rev. Dr. Jesse Bowman Young of Kansas City delivered his lecture on "St. Paul, and the World in Which He Lived," to the large audience which filled the Tabernacle this evening. filled the Tabernacie this evening. The discourse was magnificently illustrated with about one hundred stereopticon slides, which brought before the eye the changing phases of the life, the work and the character of the great apostle—his birth-place at Tarsus, his thorough education under the profound teachers of the Jews at Jerusalem, his cruelty and persecuting zeal used against the disciples of the church, his conversion, his matchless course as a missionary, during which he planted Christian churches throughout the whole Roman kingdom, and at last the tragic events kingdom, and at last the tragic events of his martyrdom at Rome.

Dr. Young dwelt upon these points, and vividly illustrated them. The plctures were superb and artistic, including reproductions of some of the pictures of the great masters—Rubens, Raphael, Fra Angelico, etc., and places made illustrious by Paul—Jerusalem, Athens, Antioch, Damascus, Rome. Dr. Young in closing uttered a fervent panegyrie upon the peerless character and matchless work of the greatest missionary that ever lived, Saul of Tarsus, Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles.

Tomorrow's Programme is as follows: Sermon at 11 a.m. by Dr. A. S. Hobbs. At 2:30 a memorial service in honor of Clinton B. Fisk will be held. In the evening Rev. J. H. Weber preaches.

SANTA MONICA.

Life at the Seaside-How the Toll-ing Masses Spend the Days. SANTA MONICA, July 12. — [Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The magnificent weather still continues, and the bathing is perfection itself. Today the thermometer reached 72°, the highest this week. Quite a number of Angeleños came down today to enjoy the surf, and the basket picnicker was more than numerous with his immense basket, from which was brought out the best of his better half's domestic cooking, while the hungry little ones danced about in the sands.

Quite a number of our visitors hired turnouts from the various liverymen, and visited the cañon and kindred outside attractions. The concert on the esplanade received its share of patronage, and the music grows better as the days become warmer, if that is possi-ble. Santa Monica Court No. 438, of the

IF A BODY MEET A BODY

the result is a collision, whether "coming thro' the rye." or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with some body or something. If it isn't with oun eighbors it is with some dread diseases that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of, more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousness, bearing-down sensations, tenderness, periodical pains, sick beadache, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration and all "female irregularities" and "weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the reacue of women as no other medicine does. It is the only medicine for women, apid by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufactuers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for twill be refunded. See guarantee on bottle-wrapper.
